SINCE Mussolini's clarion call for more babies, hospital facilities in Italy have been taxed to the utmost to care for the new arrivals. The Duce offered the equivalent of $150 to all families with four babies before 1940. This picture is a scene in the nursery of a hospital in Rome.

Czechs to Give Germans More Government Posts

PRAGUE, March 19.—(UP)—Czechoslovakia moved today to ease the European crisis by giving 3,231,688 Germans within its borders a proportionate share in local and national administrations. The government, seeking to wipe out a post-war sore spot that threatened the peace of Europe because of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's determination to place a "protective" hand on Germans living outside of Germany's frontiers, announced that a bill would be introduced in parliament to improve the status of the German minority. Under the measure, the number of Germans entitled to hold office in every branch of the various administrations would correspond with the number of Germans living within the jurisdiction of each administration. Thus, in the national government, Germans would be entitled to approximately 22 percent of the posts because they constitute 22 percent of Czechoslovakia's population of 14,729,536.

CIRCLEVILLE HAS SPRING PREVIEW AS 'MERC' ARISES

Miss Spring presented previews Friday and Saturday on her show to be formally opened next Monday. Bright sunshine was marked on the weather records for the two days, making a total of six days with sunshine recorded this month. The other days on which the sun made its appearance were March 1, 4, 7 and 8. The highest temperature recorded Friday was 62 degrees. During the night the lowest was 36. Canal road, extending south of Route 22 to Westfall, was clear of flood waters and open to traffic Saturday. Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weather recorder, said the river remained seven feet above normal at the bridge at 8 a. m. Saturday and was falling rapidly.

THREE GIVE UP BONDS OF $50 EACH TO MAYOR

Sheriff Removes Pinball Device From Village Restaurant

Two women and a man, arrested by police Friday in the campaign being conducted against the "numbers" racket, forfeited bonds of $50 each Saturday by failure to appear before Mayor W. B. Cady for hearings. Those who forfeited bonds were Carrie Zimmer of Columbus and Mrs. Opal Fisher, S. Pickaway street, and Clyde Weaver, Negro, E. Corwin street.

The Circleville residents were arrested Friday morning. Carrie Zimmer was arrested Friday afternoon by Patrolman Fred Fitzpatrick on Maplewood avenue. Police charged they were "picking up" numbers. Six persons were arrested during the week by police. All forfeited bonds of $50 each putting $300 in the city treasury.

Sheriff Takes Device

First confiscation of an alleged gambling device since the Summer of 1936 was reported by the sheriff's department Saturday. A "Captain Kidd" pinball game was taken from Wing's restaurant in Williamsport, Friday night, by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputies Robert Armstrong and Robert Adkins.

The officers said the device was operated on a basis of three balls for five cents and paid off with a jack pot. "As quick as gambling devices are reported to my office they will be picked up," the sheriff said. "Operators will not be told to take them out, we'll do the taking. All that are found will be confiscated." Pickaway county has been free of gaming devices for many years. Drives conducted by Sheriff Radcliff and his deputies have convinced owners of various kinds of devices that Pickaway county was not a "healthy" county in which to operate.

FATE OF MORGAN IN T. V. A. HINGES ON HIS ANSWER

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's attempt to settle the feud among Tennessee Valley authority directors was delayed today while T. V. A. Chairman Arthur E. Morgan decides whether he will present his case at the White House or hold out for a congressional investigation.

Observers here believed that Morgan again would refuse to support his charges against Co-directors David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan before the President.

He had until 1:30 p. m. Monday, however, to decide. Then he must answer categorically whether he is willing to let the President proceed "either under my duty as chief executive or under section 17" of the T. V. A. act with an inquiry.

If Chairman Morgan answers affirmatively, the President will proceed with his inquiry of charges of dishonesty, malfeasance in office and bad faith. If he answers "No," it was understood, Mr. Roosevelt may take the word of the other directors that the chairman has "obstructed and sabotaged the work of the T. V. A." In event of the latter, it was believed that Morgan would be asked to resign.

TURNER TO TELL OF ROAD PLANS

Highway Engineer To Talk Of Route 22 Project At C. of C. Meeting

Plans for permanent improvement of Route 22, west of the Scioto river bridge, will be discussed at length next Tuesday at noon by Frank W. Turner of Delaware, state highway engineer for division No. 6, at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting will be held in the American hotel.

Mr. Turner has taken an active part in trying to get the Route 22 project approved and, since its approval by federal authorities, has been seeking release of funds to start the work.

The highway department has completed all details concerning the project which will cost more than $100,000, and it is expected that the engineer will devote most of his address to discussion of the specifications.

The Chamber of Commerce has invited all businessmen and landowners of the district to be affected by the improvement to participate in the meeting. All who own land in the river bottoms will be interested to learn just what the road project calls for, Chamber of Commerce officials believe.

The meeting will be held in the second floor parlors of the hotel.

EUROPEAN CRISIS SHOVS MARKET TO RECORD LOW

NEW YORK, March 19.—(UP)—The stock market started strong this week, but ended in a rout as volume rose to the highest for any week since January 29. The net result of three days of heavy selling wiped out all early gains and sent the average to a new low since May 1, 1935.

All sections declined, notably rails. The railroad stock average made a new low since 1933, while the average for 10 second grade rails in the Dow-Jones compilation was at a new record low. Industrials made a new low for the year and utilities since 1935.

Primary reason for selling was fear of war. Early in the week, New York market experts were unperturbed over European developments. A flight to the dollar sent that unit up sharply against world currencies.

After a day or so of demand, however, there was as much disposition to sell United States stocks as others. The result was a break in New York.

Selling in stocks and in bonds took the form of genuine liquidation—and apparent desire to get out of stocks an into cash.

While the railroad group suffered the widest percentage decline, no section was spared. Even so-called war stocks and commodity issues joined.

WAR VETERANS PROTEST GERMAN BUND GATHERING

PITTSBURGH, March 19.—(UP)—Harvey Katz, 42, will be arraigned today on charges of inciting to riot after irate war veterans stormed a private meeting of the German-American Bund in protest against appearance of uniformed Wilhelm Kunze of New York, national director of public relations for the organization. Katz, who suffered lacerations when his fist smashed two plate glass panels at the private residence used by the Bund as headquarters here, was the only man arrested in a mob of about 600 that milled around the meeting place.

MEXICANS CLAIM OIL PROPERTIES OF OTHER LANDS

MEXICO CITY, March 19.—(UP)—President Lázaro Cárdenas by executive decree expropriated today the foreign oil industry in which the United States and other foreign nations have investments totaling $400,000,000.

Coincidentally the Bank of Mexico suspended purchase and sale of gold dollars and foreign exchange.

The two decrees marked a new climax in a major struggle between foreign industries and the government. They meant that the country faced a gigantic economic crisis and that the government and foreign capital faced a showdown on policy.

Joseph Daniels, American ambassador, was in close touch with the government and with the state department at Washington. The British minister and envoys of other nations which have tremendous sums invested in Mexico, likewise were in urgent communication with their governments.

Cardenas, regarding the fight as one that affects even Mexico's sovereignty, accused the foreign oil companies of interfering in national policies and even of supporting revolutions in years past. He said that to win, the government was prepared to sacrifice its public works program and to permit a change in the rate of exchange for the peso—a change downward as against the dollar.

FEAR OF WARFARE IN EUROPE FADES

Relations Between Two Neighboring Countries To Be Resumed

POLES TO MOVE ARMY

Legations To Be Opened By March 31

KAUNAS, Lithuania, March 19.—(UP)—Jokubas Staniskauskis, vice premier, in a statement at a special parliament session today said: "In view of the international situation the Lithuanian government felt compelled to accept the Polish proposal."

WARSAW, March 19.—(UP)—Lithuania today accepted a Polish ultimatum on restoration of relations and removed, in doing so, a grave threat to the peace of Europe.

A formidable Polish army was massed on Lithuania's frontier and the Polish battle fleet was steaming off Memel, chief port of Lithuania on the Baltic sea, when the Lithuanian minister at Tallinn, Estonia, handed to the Polish minister there, his country's acceptance of Poland's demand.

The note was handed to the Polish minister 10 hours before the expiration of the 48 hour ultimatum sent to Lithuania Thursday night.

Relations Restored

In its reply, Lithuania accepted Poland's demand for immediate restoration of diplomatic relations, and, as the result, legations will be established at the respective capitals, to be opened March 31. March 31 was the final day mentioned by Poland for opening of legations.

As a result of the Lithuanian note, it was expected that within 48 hours Poland would recall the troops massed on the Lithuanian frontier, including up to the minute mechanized units that were ready at the zero hour to move across the frontier.

The ultimatum and the Lithuanian answer to it were exchanged at Tallinn, the Estonian capital, in the absence of direct diplomatic relations.

Poland was ready for war but the country had awaited confidently what it believed was certain to be an acceptance of the Polish demand.

So confident were the Poles that Lithuania would give in, the crisis seemed here to have subsided—even before the expiration of the ultimatum—and as suddenly as it arose.

It was admitted that Poland had taken extraordinary measures to end the dispute with Lithuania, one which had made normal relations impossible for 18 years.

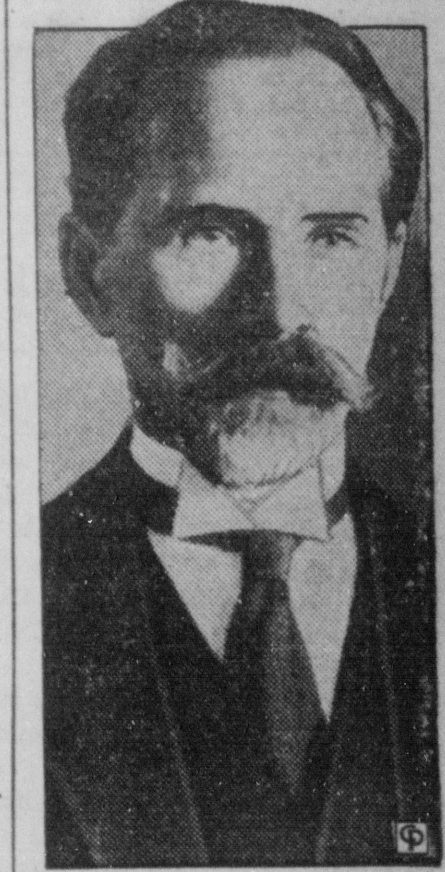

All Europe in Danger

But the Polish argument is that the dispute, which arose over Poland's occupation of the Vilna area and was brought to a climax last week when a Polish frontier guard was shot dead, was a danger to Europe and that the measures taken, while extraordinary, actually were calculated to normalize relations and thereby consolidate peace.

Even while it waited for Lithuania's reply, the government introduced in parliament, with a request for speedy passage, a bill legalizing the removal of citizenship status for certain categories of citizens. The bill was motivated by the fact that 30,000 Jewish people in Austria enjoy Polish citizenship even though some of them never really lived here, and that many are now eager to come to Poland because of the Nazi accession to power.

Troubled President

NEWEST danger spot in Europe is the republic of Lithuania, of which Antanas Smetona is president. The alleged killing of a Polish frontier guard in a recent incident resulted in the massing of Polish troops on the Lithuanian border and delivery of an ultimatum to the government. It was rumored that Soviet Russia was prepared to take action if Lithuania were invaded. The ultimatum was accepted.

PART OF SPAIN'S CABINET WANTS CIVIL WAR ENDED

BARCELONA, March 19.—(UP)—It was reported today that a group within the Spanish Loyalist cabinet favored ending the civil war at "almost any price." Another group, it was said, wanted to carry it on to the "bitter end."

The cabinet met while an estimated half million persons fled the Loyalist capital, subjected to three consecutive days of frightful bombings from the air, to the comparative safety of the surrounding mountains.

The flight involved more than one-fourth of the city's population. Although latest census, compiled in December, 1934, gave the population as 1,148,129, it was estimated that almost one million persons had come here for refuge since the war started.

For the first time since the start of the war, the commercial life of Spain's richest capital was paralyzed. Its center, much of it in ruins, was vacated. Business was being conducted from residences in the outskirts.

Officials of the United States embassy set up new quarters in the suburbs, as did other embassies.

Anthony Lecouteux, French vice-consul, died in a hospital of wounds suffered in a raid. Consul General Binet was wounded as was Alcibiades Pecanha, former Brazilian ambassador.

The Czechoslovakian consulate at Castellon was destroyed and the French consul at Vinaroz was killed.

JURY VOTES MERCY FOR GRAFTON GIRL'S KILLER

ELYRIA, March 19.—(UP)—A jury's recommendation of mercy today saved Edward Hensley, 22, from death in the electric chair, Hensley was convicted of the murder of Ramona Louise Hornbeck, 19, at Grafton last October.

The jury of eight women and four men deliberated seven hours before giving a verdict last night. "I am not guilty," Hensley said after hearing the verdict.

Hensley was a trusty at the Grafton prison farm when Miss Hornbeck, a dentist's assistant, was criminally assaulted and slain Oct. 18 while on her way home from work.

Three suspects "confessed" to the girl's murder.

SURPRISING FORM REVERSALS MARK STATE TOURNEY, NOW NEAR FINALE

About This and That In Many Sports

SOME SCRIBBLINGS *****
Six Circleville high school lettermen and Coach Jack Landrum were guests of Kiwanians at the state basketball tournament Saturday. Included in the party were Kenny Smith, Junior Davis, Paul Walters, Dick Mader, Hildeburn Martin, and Earl Garner, in addition to Coach Landrum and the chaperones, Dan McClain and Carl Bennett. The athletes and their mentor were taken to the afternoon session, then to dinner, and back to the coliseum for the final session. Upper Arlington's defeat at the hands of Canal Fulton was not expected in this corner. The Golden Bears apparently weren't on the team's forte all year has been offense with Graf and Faught bearing the brunt of it. When the Bears met an equally brilliant offense in the Canal Fulton lads it was too bad, since the Arlington defense was not adequate.

Chances of Tournament Semi-finalists Viewed

COLUMBUS, March 19—(UP)—Random jottings on the state scholastic basketball tournament. . . .
Thumbnail sketches on the semi-finalists and their championship chances:
New Philadelphia . . . Rangy and fast . . . Play more impressive against a team employing a man-to-man defense which permits the use of the pivot play. . . . In Leonard Simonetti has a fine under-the-basket and rebound man. . . . May possess punch enough to take the title. . . .
Hamilton . . . On the basis of play here positively unpredictable. . . . Looked exceptionally weak against Akron East and strong against Canton McKinley. . . . Entire fate revolves around its giant center, Chet Laisron. . . . If Laisron "on" team will make a determined bid to retain crown. . . .
Newark . . . The "best bet" for the championship. . . . Team fast and composed of good shots. . . . In Bobby Mercer has the tournament's outstanding individual star. . . . If beaten, failure to control the ball off the backboards most likely reason. . . .
Bridgeport . . . Given only a remote chance for the crown. . . . Defensive weaknesses keep team from gaining title consideration. . . .
Enon . . . A smooth-working, accurate-shooting quintet. . . . Favored to go to the finals. . . . In Paul Rueger, a forward, has an outstanding player. . . .
Hartsville . . . Team appears to be outclassed. . . .
Canal Fulton . . . The probable titlist. . . . Team has size and speed. . . . A well-knit defense and ability to control rebounds prime factors in giving quintet the favorite's post. . . .
Shawnee . . . A well-coached, impressive looking team. . . . Lack of size against it, however. . . . Has brilliant performer in Johnny Wheeler. . . . An underdog, but dangerous. . . .

FELLER TO FACE SOUTHPAW STAR IN GIANT GAME

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 19—(UP)—The mound rivalry of a 19 year-old youngster who experts believe will become one of baseball's all-time greats, and a crafty veteran who ranks among the outstanding southpaws in history, will be renewed here tomorrow.
The battle will pit Bob Feller, the schoolboy hurler of the Cleveland Indians, against Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants.
The Indians and Giants were to open their series today, but scant attention was paid to the contest in view of the forthcoming Feller-Hubbell argument.
Feller has not worked a game thus far during the training season. Manager Oscar Vitt has brought him along carefully so as to prevent a possible recurrence of the injury he received last Spring.
The Tribe's drill yesterday was featured by the splendid showing of Jeff Heath, rookie outfielder. Heath showed a world of power at bat and indicated he would make a determined fight for a regular berth.

CALIFORNIA SCORES 59 TO SET COURSE RECORD

ALEMEDA, Cal., March 19—(UP)—Earl Fry shot a 59—possibly a world record in competitive play—to eliminate his brother, Mark, yesterday, and enter the semi-final round of play in the P. G. A. northern California championship.
Earl scored 12 birdies in 18 holes and he was 12 under par. He won his match 5 and 3 but finished out the three remaining holes when he saw he had a chance to set a record.
Fry one-putted 14 greens and two-putted the other four.
The mark was made over the Alameda municipal course.

HAMILTON ENDS CANTON CHANCE IN 39-37 JOUST

Upper Arlington Defeated By Big, Fast-Stepping Canal Fulton Five

COLUMBUS, March 19—(UP)—Two former title-holders and six teams which never have won the state's most coveted scholastic basketball championships were to fight it out here today for the crown in the 30th annual Ohio scholastic basketball tournament.
The eight teams advanced yesterday after a hectic second round that saw one major upset in Class "A" and three startling form reversals in the "B" division.
In the semi-final games today of Class "A" New Philadelphia meets the defending champion, Hamilton; and Newark, the 1936 schoolboy cage king, opposes Bridgeport. In Class "B", the round-of-four contests send Enon against Hartville; and Canal Fulton against Shawnee.

Newark Favorite
Newark remains the favorite for the Class "A" championship. The race for the "B" crown is wide-open, but Canal Fulton is given a slight edge over the other three contenders.
The big upset in Class "A" was furnished when Hamilton, which looked miserable in its first round game against Akron East, came to life and played bang-up ball to eliminate the highly regarded Canton McKinley quintet 39 to 37.
Hamilton pulled a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" act in upsetting McKinley. The southwestern Ohio team blundered through its inaugural contest, but yesterday it suddenly became a smooth-working quintet that turned in the outstanding performance of the day.
New Philadelphia's offense failed to function with the precision it did in the opening round because the Akron team consistently tied up Leonard Simonetti on the pivot.
The victors' scoring was evenly divided by Earl Fisher, Frank Hoerneman, Charley Swihart and Simonetti, each of whom secured four points.
Buchtel's outstanding star was Charles Joslyn. The lanky center scored only two points, but he turned in a fine all-around game.

Rebound Controlled

Newark was out-sized by Cincinnati Roger Bacon and was pushed the limit to win 25 to 22. Roger Bacon controlled the rebounds the entire game and this helped in a large measure to stifle the high-powered offensive gestures of the Wildcats.
The Cincinnati team managed to bottle up all the Newark players except diminutive Bob Mercer. Mercer continued his brilliant play and dropped in 11 points to set the pace for the victorious Wildcats.
Roger Bacon held the advantage throughout the first half, being in front 6 to 5 at the end of the first quarter and 11 to 10 at the end of the second period. Newark forged ahead in the third and held the advantage the remainder of the way.
Bridgeport, the tournament's "dark horse," remained in the title running with a 31 to 25 victory over Akron St. Vincent.
Freddie Amrine, diminutive guard, personally accounted for Bridgeport's victory by scoring 15 points.

Arlington Thumped

Canal Fulton made certain Class "B" would have a new champion when it eliminated Columbus Upper Arlington, the 1937 winner, 40 to 24.
Canal Fulton ran up an 11 to 4 lead in the first period and the issue was never in doubt. Its tight zone defense frustrated all attempts of Arlington to work the ball in for close shots.
Alan Hobbs, flashy forward, led the victors with 19 points. Jack Graf was high for Upper Arlington with 12 points.
In other "B" games, Shawnee turned in an impressive 34 to 28 victory over Willshire; Hartville won from West Milton 26 to 18; and Enon trounced New Boston 50 to 37. The Shawnee triumph was the only one not recorded as an upset.

Cardinal Fans See Trio at Peak of Slugging Circles

ST. LOUIS, March 19—(UP)—Take it for what it's worth, but supporters of the St. Louis Cardinals predict the 1938 race for National League batting honors will be a three-way contest between Joe (the Duck) Medwick, John Mize and Rookie Enos Slaughter, leading sluggers of the Gas House Gang.
Medwick is a cinch to repeat his performance of last year, St. Louis fans say. He ran up a batting average of .374 to lead the league, and observers predict that unless he breaks an arm or leg in mid-season he will even surpass last year's feat if for not other reason than that he will have strenuous competition from his two team mates.

Mize Formidable Rival

Mize, big first baseman, is expected to provide most of The Duck's competition. The 25-year-old Georgian was runner-up in batting in the senior circuit last year in his second season with the Cardinals. Observers say that if he continues to show the same progress demonstrated in the past two years he may even pass Medwick.
Mize was the National League's outstanding rookie in 1936 when he broke into the Cardinal lineup by ousting Rip Collins from first base. He batted .329 that year, and provide it was no flash-in-the-pan performance last season by batting .364, second only to Medwick's .374.
Medwick and Mize were considered the best "one-two punch" in the league last season. In fact, if The Duck had not chalked up his best season to date, Mize would have been the hitting sensation of the league. Not only was he second to Medwick in batting but he was won from West Milton 26 to 18; and Enon trounced New Boston 50 to 37. The Shawnee triumph was the only one not recorded as an upset.

BRUNDAGE RAPS CHANGE IN JAP OLYMPIC DATES

CAIRO, Egypt, March 19—(UP)—Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic association, said today that the United States would campaign to have the 1940 Olympic games in Tokyo shifted back to their original date of Aug. 25-Sept. 28.
The International Olympic committee, heading a statistical report of Japanese climatic conditions, decided Tokyo would be too torrid and moved the games to Sept. 21-Oct. 6. Brundage fought the change on the grounds that it would handicap participation by American college students.
"It certainly was a blow," Brundage said, "but we were outvoted. The I. O. C. meets again in London in June next year, and we plan to fight for re-instatement of the original date, but that may be too late for Japan to make the change."

BURLEIGH GRIMES SET ON HIS STARTING TEAM

BRADENTON, Fla., March 19—(UP)—Ray (Peaches) Davis and the veteran Ted Kleinbans were scheduled to pitch for the Cincinnati Reds here today as they returned to the exhibition warfare by meeting the Boston Bees.
Lou Fette, a 20 game winner last season, was to oppose the Redlegs at the start of the contest. The Reds took a routine drill yesterday. The workout was featured by the continued brilliant playing of Frank McCormick at first base.
Manager Bill McKechnie definitely has decided to use the youngster in preference to the veteran Baxter Jordan.
The Reds yesterday release Dee Moore, rookie catcher, to Syracuse of the International league.

Keeping the Body Strong

God wanted Samson to have a strong body. So he sent an angel to say to Samson's mother that she was not to "drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing."

Judges 13:4—"Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink and eat not any unclean thing."

Keeping the Body Strong

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 20 is Mark 6:53-56; Judges 13:12-14; I Corinthians 3:16, 17; Romans 12:1, 2, the Golden Text being Judges 13:4, "Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink and eat not any unclean thing.")

AN OLD Maryland slave of antebellum days, riding through the country in an open wagon through a drenching rain, carefully sheltering an old hat under the wagon seat, was asked why he thus protected his hat instead of his head, and he replied, "Because the hat belongs to me, but the head belongs to Master." How often we seem to follow the same reasoning as we give more care to safeguarding our property than we give to safeguarding the health and well-being of our bodies.

Our Disreputable Bodies
The human body has come in for a lot of unmerited vilification, even in the name of religion. Too often it is set over against the spirit as necessarily hostile to everything good. What abuse and torture have been heaped upon it in the hope that the torture of the body might atone for the sins of the soul. God might have created us disembodied spirits. But, instead, he wisely loaned us bodies to be "presented, a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is our spiritual service." We may as fully consecrate and

REV. GIBSON OF NAZARENE CHURCH SPEAKS SUNDAY

The Rev. C. A. Gibson of Columbus, superintendent of the Ohio district of the Church of the Nazarene, will speak in the Circleville Church of the Nazarene at the Sunday evening service. He recently returned from the Holy Land where he spent several weeks.

PREACHING MISSION OPENS MARCH 27 AT U. B. CHURCH

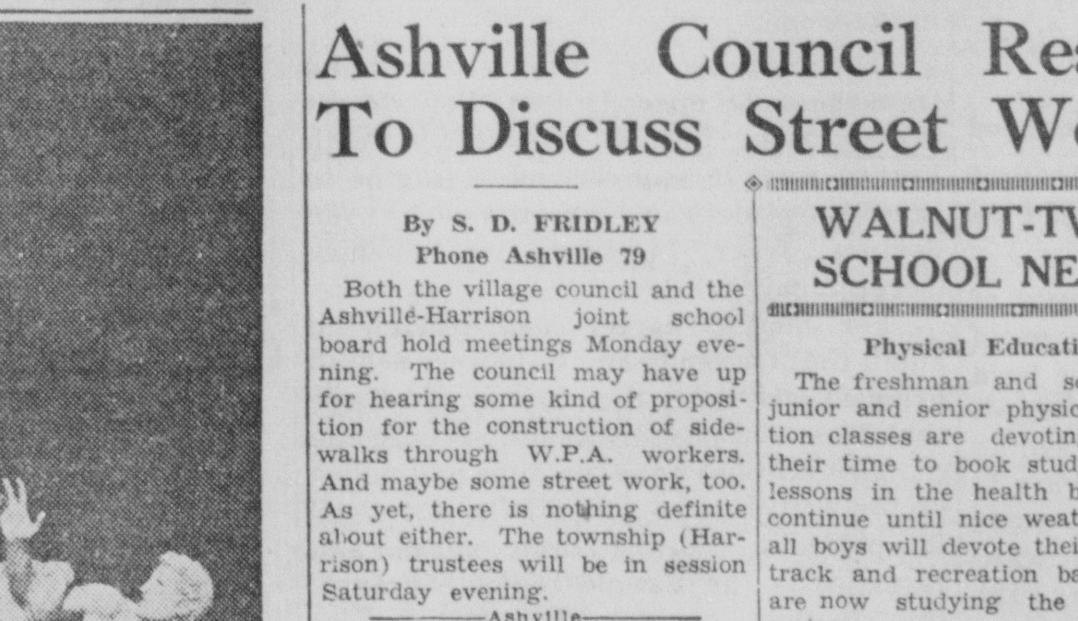

A preaching mission will begin Sunday, March 27, in the First United Brethren church to continue two weeks. Visiting pastors will preach and the services will be evangelistic. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, pastor of First Presbyterian church, will be the guest speaker on the night of March 27.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 6:53-56; Judges 13:12-14; Corinthians 3:16, 17; Romans 12:1, 2.

Jesus was eager to see folks have strong, healthy bodies. He gave much time to healing the sick and crippled. "They laid the sick in the market places, and as many as touched him were made whole."

Paul wrote to the Corinthians to regard their bodies as "the temple of God," and to treat them accordingly. To willfully injure the body is like desecrating a temple, he taught.

To the Romans Paul wrote that they should consecrate their bodies to God "a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, your spiritual service." (GOLDEN TEXT—Judges 13:4).

Ashville Council Ready To Discuss Street Work

By S. D. FRIDLEY Phone Ashville 79

Both the village council and the Ashville-Harrison joint school board hold meetings Monday evening. The council may have up for hearing some kind of proposition for the construction of sidewalks through W.P.A. workers. And maybe some street work, too. As yet, there is nothing definite about either. The township (Harrison) trustees will be in session Saturday evening.

Writers Seek Cover
Down in the third story of the cellar, you'll find the number writers now, just in case you may want to invest a few of those pennies you have no use for. There has been a big crimp in the local market since the county seat mayor has stepped on all forms of gambling. Both the pickpurses and the writers display smallpox signs, so beware!

Tag Mart Better
The auto tag market has had an upward trend this week but has not reached the brisk stage yet. By the time you read this, there will have been sold since the start, March 4, 230 tags. Miss Hoover, the deputy registrar for Ashville and community said that out of each six tags sold there is one truck tag.

Personal Notes
Clarence Kern came down from the Chittenden hotel Friday for a few hours to visit with home folk. He is getting better from his sickness of a few weeks ago. . . . Now that the women of Ashville, all of them, are through with county seat cooking school, there'll be more a la mode fried potatoes and mush. They brought some of the prizes along home with them, of course, and didn't do bad at that. . . . Tuesday evening, the 22nd, the banquet for the basketball game winners and near winners will be given at the school auditorium. Fred Brobst, director of instrumental music in the Ashville schools, will be in charge of a concert given by his pupils on next Friday night, March 25. . . . The freshy girls and the junior boys won in the basketball class tournament.

Ailing Improving
This milder weather is the right medicine for our ailing ones. Sol Allison, George Justus and Taylor Brintlinger are on the streets again gaining in health each day.

Hatching Discussed
That hatching of a hen's egg by a pigeon and its mothering the chick, down in the hay loft of the barn at the Henry Ward farm off the Walnut creek pike, as related in the "Round Circleville" column, was up for discussion in the supreme court Friday. Some of the members of the court had never heard of such a thing and wanted to list it in the "True or Not" story column. But a couple of the members who seem to be born naturalists said this pigeon feat was nothing new to them. Said a substantial and truthful farmer up in Harrison township not far from Ashville, raises pigeons by the hundreds could do such a trick and think nothing of it, but on a more extensive scale. Homing pigeons and Pouters make best mothers for chicks. Even goose eggs can be hatched this way, one of our court members explained to the several members present at the session.

Money Orders in Demand
March 15 was a banner day for money order sales at the local postoffice. Twenty-two were sold for a total of $282. Sales for the remaining days of the week, up to Friday evening were below standard. Both postal card and stamp sales were rated in the slim class. The office is all shined up with new paper and paint. Ben Morrison was the artist.

U. S. Public Health Service
The U. S. public health service has found that the death rate among unskilled and poorly paid workers is much higher than among professional and high-salaried men.

A Senior Letter
Route Two Ashville, Ohio March 8, 1938

Dear Janet,
Spring is almost here! Doesn't it make you feel like dancing and shouting? I experienced this same feeling the other day when mother told me I could visit you this Summer. How I wish school were out!

Have you read any exceptionally good books lately? Let me know the names of those you would recommend highly. I'm having a hard time finding books to suit my taste.

A book I read recently, "Let the King Beware," is one of the best I ever read. It is a story dealing with George III and the American colonies. What one reads in histories about the trouble in the early colonies such as the Stamp Act, Boston Tea Party, Boston Port Bill, and the other incidents leading up to the Revolutionary War, present just one side of the affair, how the Americans felt. This book portrays the thoughts of George III and the government officials regarding the whole affair. King George did what he thought best for the colonies, and seemed to have a great love for them. King George's home life is also shown. He was a great lover of music and a fine musician. He was very fond of children and kind and considerate to his subjects. Ben Franklin's struggles

The engineering class is finishing up electrical discussion and will take up gasoline motors in the near future.

Wagon tongues and singletrees are the main tools and equipment being constructed in shop.

Feeding of sheep and swine is the main topic of discussion in the freshman and sophomore agriculture class.

POPULAR TRADE FACTS
SECRETARY of State Hull's proposal for a reciprocal trade treaty with England finds more popular support than might have been expected. A poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows 73 percent of the American people favoring it, to 27 percent opposing it. Not only do Democrats favor it but a majority of Republicans express their approval.
The representative voters declared flatly that "if Great Britain reduces tariffs on American goods, we should reduce tariffs on British goods."
It is evident that a large majority of the American people have been convinced at last of what our economists have been telling us unanimously for many years—that we cannot buy abroad without selling abroad, and that one of the best ways to restore prosperity and peace to the world is to lower the prohibitive tariff walls erected almost everywhere after the World War. This is a slow process, but under American leadership is making headway abroad.

STILL DESTROYING FORESTS
THIRTY years after Gifford Pinchot and Theodore Roosevelt began to awaken the American people to the ruinous depletion of our forests, the President says in a message to Congress:
"We are still exploiting our forest land. Forest communities are still being crippled, still being left desolate and forlorn. Watersheds are still being denuded. Fertile valleys and industrial cities below such watersheds still suffer from erosion and floods. We are still liquidating our forest capital, still cutting our accessible forests faster than they are being replaced."
In the privately owned forest lands that still contribute 96 percent of our forest products, he reports, cropping operations prevent proper regrowth. A great part of the cut-over area has become tax-delinquent and "much of it is forming a new but almost worthless man's land."
We must confess that they handle such things better in Europe. That is doubtless because the nations there are older, and have been compelled to take care of their forests for timber crops and water supply and soil conservation. But we seem to learn and apply with pitiful slowness the lessons they have learned.

Hitler and Mussolini are sure to get into an argument sooner or later as to which is Napoleon, and the only way to compromise that will be to let one of 'em be Napoleon and the other Caesar.

Now a young fellow comes into the office and confesses that he's plotting a matrimonial Anschluss.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a lovely morning and soon out and about the paves. Heard some encouraging reports of business pick-up. All nature comes to new life in the Spring, so why not business? At the post noted Ed Sensenbrenner, who has put aside his ear-flap Winter cap and thinks he will need it no more this season. I hope not.

There goes Frank Lynch who scolded me for referring to his beverage as Coke and not as Coca Cola. And here comes Carl Mason with an invitation to have Frank drink with him. Wonder how that fellow always knows when I am not up to par? Chatted with Harry Sheets, chief of police at Portsmouth and former chief and later sheriff in this village. Harry was waiting for repairs to his automobile that was put down for the count in a battle with a truck.

Virgil Cress in his bulletin to Kivnians this week offers encouraging advice. "Work hard for eight hours a day and don't worry; then in time you may become the boss and work 18 hours a day and have all the worry." Heard of a group of local women winning $1,955 by putting $230 on the nose of an outsider in a horse race this week. Their choice romped home to pay 17 to 2, thereby removing the last trace of last Summer's tan from the faces of three local bookies.

Stood in the sunshine and chatted with Clark Will, the banker, discussing this and that of present and past. Clark and I have a hobby or two in common and seldom are at a loss for conversational topics. Climbed on a stool and ate lunch alongside Charlie May, the barrister, who knows everybody in the county and all the local history.

Noted four jobless men standing in the sunshine and seriously engaged in discussion of national governmental and world affairs. They seemed not too unhappy; certainly having little of the appearance of jobless men of a decade ago. Ten years ago the man out of work had to worry not only about getting another job, but about starving as well. Now, 50 percent of his worry is rubbed out by a kind government. For some, I fear, all the worry has been erased.

Dropped in on Bish Given, the gas dispenser, and found him in earnest conversation with Bud Harden. Many a fine, big fish was caught there in just a few minutes. We adjourned across the way to look at some new tackle just stocked by Ralph Haines, and Bish being placed in a quandary caught and crushed between his reasonable expectations and his fondest hopes. He don't know whether to buy a six pound or an eighteen pound casting line. Hope he didn't think I was inferring anything when I suggested the lightest line available.

Back to the plant then for a session with records and then home at the usual hour for a quiet evening.

STATE DEPARTMENT "BAFO"

WASHINGTON—The Naval War College has a name for the State Department which is not supposed to be known outside naval circles. It is BAFO, short for "British-American Foreign Office", and during the present European crisis, unfortunately, there is some truth in the Navy's jest.

For seldom has a situation been so badly gauged as the events which have tumbled over each other during the last two weeks to place Europe at the brink of war.

British diplomats—except for Eden—have been buffaloes, outguessed and hoodwinked all along the line, while American diplomats, taking their cues from the British, have watched the fracas with the dazed understanding of babes-in-the-wood.

The Spanish war was miscalculated from the day it opened. State Department career men, openly sympathetic with Franco went to unprecedented lengths to prevent American supplies or even doctors from reaching the Spanish Government.

For months career men refused to admit that Germany and Italy were behind Franco; even today they naively disbelieve that Mussolini has any ambitions in Spain.

This also has been the hope and policy of the British, who are chiefly interested in protecting British iron mines and factories in the Basque region. Franco, they thought, could be bought, whereas British capital could not control a Socialist Spanish Government.

REVERSE ENGLISH
When the Insurgents win in Spain, however, it will not be Franco whom the British will have to buy, but Benito Mussolini—whose price is high.

Spain once was a part of the Roman Empire. If you want the key to Mussolini's foreign policy, just glance at the giant maps which he has painted on the sides of his new buildings in Rome, showing the Italy of today alongside the Rome of yesterday, with a third map showing how he is building the Roman Empire up again.

Mussolini already has laid careful plans to annex Spain.

He figures that about one million civilians have been killed in Spain since the fighting began—especially doctors, lawyers and others in professional occupations. After Franco's victory, therefore, Mussolini will make the magnanimous gesture of sending a million of his over-bulging population to help reconstruct Spain. They will never come back. They will remain to build a new Roman Empire on the ashes of the old.

British and American diplomats also guessed wrong on the deal between Hitler and Mussolini, thought the two dictators could be wedged apart. Only recently did BAFO wake up to that fact that Hitler had promised to pull Italian chestnuts out of the Spanish fire, in payment for which Mussolini looked the other way while Hitler conquered Austria.

All of which goes to prove that in these stream-lined cut-throat days of gangster diplomacy, the diplomatic game should not be played by gentlemen.

Gall Bladder Trouble Influences the Stomach

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT WAS pointed out yesterday that most stomach symptoms are functional or due to reflex influence from disease of a different source. Perhaps one of the commonest causes of dyspepsia or stomach upset is gall bladder infection.

The gall bladder is very subject to infection. All the blood that comes from the intestines goes to the liver, and sometimes this blood is heavily loaded with poisons and germs. The liver excretes both the poisons and the germs in the bile, so it is not surprising the bile and the gall bladder may contain living germs, and these infect the bile and the walls of the gall bladder.

Infection in the gall bladder may go through a number of stages, ranging from a very mild catarrh to the formation of gallstones, and even the formation of pus in the gall bladder. Since the gall bladder lies quite close to the outlet of the stomach, and since it empties just beyond the outlet of the stomach, it is not surprising that when any of these conditions occur, the stomach may be the mouthpiece. The stomach has been called "the greatest liar in the anatomy," and sometimes it may say "I am sick" when the trouble is actually in the gall bladder. Such cases can be spotted by a capable diagnostician by a careful examination of the history of the case, localization of tenderness and the help of the X-ray.

Surgery for Severe Cases
Treatment in severe cases is surgery but a great many people, quite properly, do not like to face this prospect. Their views gain a good deal of support from the medical profession. I have known several doctors with gall bladder trouble who put off operation and were content to be treated by medical means.

Medical treatment consists of small, easily digested meals, low in fat. Many people gain relief by swallowing a teaspoon of salts, such as sodium phosphate in a glass of warm water before breakfast while dressing in the morning. The salt is quickly emptied into the first part of the intestine and it seems to have an influence in opening and draining the gall bladder.

A similar form of treatment is known as medical gall bladder drainage, in which a rubber tube with a metal tip is swallowed until the tip is just opposite the opening of the gall bladder into the intestine. A strong solution of epsom salts is injected, which has a tendency to open up an obstructed duct and to cause the gall bladder to contract.

This treatment had quite a vogue a few years ago, and although it is not used so often now, will give relief in a great many mild cases.

One More Wedding

by HELEN WELSHIMER COPYRIGHT CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Barbara Kingsley, pretty young society editor of the Martindale Post, has just "covered" another wedding. She is tired of the routine but Peter Easter, managing editor, cheers her fading spirits. Garry Page, New York newspaper man in town for the wedding, misses the train back and Barbara, at the train to pick up pictures, offers to drive him to the junction to catch the last train that night. They have dinner and, at the junction, run into the wedding party, including Barbara's proud cousin, Julia. A few weeks later Natalie Kendall, a close friend of Barbara's who is a New York fashion columnist, wires Barbara of an opening on a child magazine. Barbara decides to take the position and Natalie meets her upon her arrival in New York. Barbara learns that Garry Page is a good friend of Natalie's. Then she phones him. Next day Garry sails for a few weeks in Europe. Barbara and several other friends of his, including Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, are at the pier to see him off.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 6

GARRY was holding her hands, saying goodbye, and Barbara pushed away the memory of the breakfast he had shared with Ruth.

"Maybe I'm a cockeyed goof, Barbara, but I wanted to see you. And I'll be back in a month."
Then very quickly the whole gay party was on the dock, the gangplank was being taken in, the orchestra was playing gaily, the ship was moving. At the rail Garry and the producer were waving their hats. Barbara waved her handkerchief. She wondered if she imagined it, or if Garry smiled down at her as the boat began to pull away.

She had not time to contemplate. A man with cynical eyes was speaking. "Have you had breakfast?" he asked.

"Some coffee."
"Good! Nobody can live long on coffee. I missed Ruth's breakfast because I didn't get up." Ruth's breakfast! Then Garry hadn't invited her—she had asked him. "How about you and me going over to Mario's and getting some scrambled eggs and bacon and fruit and coffee—much more coffee?"

"I think it would be grand!" Barbara answered, and knew that the man must wonder why all of a sudden she came to life. So Ruth had given a party for Garry! He had not asked the girl to be his guest on this, his last morning.

He told her his name as the cab took them uptown. He was Jack Metcalf. Barbara recognized the name. He wrote books. A couple of them had been best sellers. He was quite tall and thin and he gave the impression of forever being slightly bored. His lips twisted ironically sometimes but unexpectedly a twinkle would come into his deepest eyes. He was an easy person to talk to, though.

"Although it may be because I'm happy," Barbara reflected.

"Known Garry Page long?" he asked as they were being served.

"I met him last summer."
"Know Ruth?"

"I met her this morning. I liked her."
"She's aces with a lot of us. I hope she doesn't get hurt any more."

Barbara glanced up quickly. Was he trying to imply that Garry was Ruth's and she might be taking him away?

He went on. "Ruth was engaged—madly in love—with a nice enough person but a girl from out-of-town took him away from her. It didn't happen very long ago. Maybe you'll be meeting the man and the new girl. They haven't been married long. It's better for you not to know them when you see them so I won't tell their names."

Then he changed the subject: "Where are you going to live?" "I have to search for a place." "An apartment?" "Not at first."
"Ever seen Garry's rooms?" "No, I just came yesterday, you see."

"He has a nice setup. My lease is up so I'm staying there this month while I hunt around. Why not come over for tea this afternoon? Say, around half-past five? A few others may drop in."

When Barbara told Natalie, over the telephone, where she was going, the older girl gasped. "Barbs, does he know you're staying with me?"

"I honestly don't know. No, I guess I didn't mention it."

"Good! I'm going along with you, my dear!"

Barbara was only mildly interested in Natalie's announcement. Natalie probably knew the author well, and anybody went to anybody else's house at tea time in New York, unless the hour was being spent in a quiet place where music and soft lights and low voices added intrigue to the twilight zone.

However, when Jack came to the door with his easy, long-legged grace, she caught the surprise in his eyes although he quickly banished it. One thing was uppermost in Barbara's mind: Jack Metcalf was not glad to see Natalie.

"It is a surprise, Natalie," he was saying. "You are looking as charming as ever—y younger, I believe."

"And you are as flattering as of old, Sir Launcelot," Natalie answered. "I'm chaperoning." "Chaperoning? My dear Natalie, whatever gave you the idea that a guest of mine needed that old-fashioned enmeshment? Not that you're old-fashioned, Natalie—forgive me. Or are you?"

"Very." She went into the fire that had been kindled against the coldness of the rainy day. "I like Garry's rooms."

There were deep, comfortable chairs and divans. Rows of books lined the walls, and the firelight shone on polished copper and brass. It was a man's room. Instantly Barbara liked it. She wished that she could get acquainted with it alone. These two people, though one of them was Natalie, spoiled it for her.

Jack Metcalf had thrown open a door. "Want to leave your coats in here?"

The door led into the bedroom, which was furnished in the same mode as the living room. It had a large desk and notebooks. There were a few good prints, and a careless assortment of photographs overflowing a leather holder. A few had fallen on the floor. Barbara stooped to retrieve them. One was a photograph of a famous actor. The other was a girl. She recognized the face—Ruth Merryweather. She did not mean to read the inscription but the letters grew and grew until they blotted out the face: "To Garry, in memory of something, Ruth."

In memory of something—in memory of what? Three breathless words, a snow ride through Central park, or a magic moment on somebody's terrace with the bridges, hanging slim and luminous, against the sky and river? In memory of something—

Fifty Members of Club Enjoy Splendid Program

Mrs. Ray W. Davis, Mary Crites Heard

Fifty members of the Women's Social club of the Presbyterian church gathered in the social room, Friday evening, to enjoy the interesting program consisting of the review of a play by Mrs. Ray Davis and vocal music by Miss Mary Crites.

Mrs. Hulse Hays presided at the business session, and named the nominating committee for the next year. Miss Bertha Bowers was chosen chairman. She will be assisted by Mrs. Florence Steele, Mrs. Tom Renick, Mrs. Harp Van Riper and Miss Sadie Brummer. Plans were discussed for purchasing new curtains for the stage, and it was decided to ask the Ladies' Aid society and the Westminster Bible class to cooperate in this project.

After the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Loring Evans, the program was presented. Mrs. Renick, chairman of the committee, presenting Miss Crites, who sang "Elf Dance," by Richard Kountz and "The Slumber Boat," by Gaynor. Her accompaniments were played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Mrs. Davis then gave a delightful talk on a play which she had seen while in New York City. The play is "Susan and God," by Rachel Crothers. She gave a brief preface of her talk, stating that she would not attempt to give a review, but would only tell the story as it appealed to her. She mentioned the theme of the play as being based on the "Oxford movement," or the study of "Buchmanism," a new thought in religion just gaining foothold in America. She mentioned Miss Crothers as being especially good at "debunking" her women characters, as they were either "too good to be true or too awful to be real."

Miss Gertrude Lawrence took the part of Susan, who was depicted as falling for each new movement or fad, and living intensely for the moment in each. She fooled only herself as her friends, who were described as varying widely, saw through her poses. Paul McGrath played opposite her in the part of Barrie, her irresponsible but charming husband. Mrs. Davis brought out the point of the play as a triumph of character through faith. Told in Mrs. Davis' own manner, with splendid choice of words, the play unfolded to the great delight of the audience.

Sandwiches, cakes and tea were served during the social hour, the tea table being attractive with its centerpiece of spring flowers. Mrs. Charles Naumann poured.

The social committee was comprised of Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, chairman, Miss Clara Southard, Miss Essie Reber, Mrs. Fred Newhouse, Mrs. Ida Lerch, Mrs. G. H. Colvill, Mrs. Naumann, Mrs. Grace Wentworth, Mrs. Estelle Ritt Morris and Mrs. Noah Spangler.

Mrs. List Entertains Club

Mrs. Kenneth List of Williamsport entertained the members of her three table bridge club and a few additional guests, Friday evening. Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock at small tables centered with green tapers, all party appointments carrying out the St. Patrick's Day colors.

Among the guests were Mrs. Frank Kibby, Mrs. Tom Gephart, Mrs. S. B. Metzger, Mrs. Howard Sams, Miss Laura McGhee and Miss Grace Pinscham. The club members included Mrs. Russell McDill, of Frankfort; Mrs. Fred Tipton, Mrs. Russell Wardell, Mrs. H. W. Campbell, Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. Lee Luellen, Mrs. William Heiskell, Mrs. George Le-

Nursery Party Provides Children Entertainment

By Lyall Cryder

While their mothers attended cooking school Friday afternoon, 15 members of the "much younger set" of the county attended a "nursery party" and with no set entertainment or series of games planned, proceeded to have themselves a real time.

The first to arrive was Miss Fonda Lee Liston of Mt. Sterling, who at the ripe age of five months, felt she could no longer delay stepping out into society. She opened her large blue eyes, graciously allowed her wraps to be removed, looked around quite wisely and proceeded to the serious business of a nap, which she took on a convenient table.

One by one the guests were brought to the door, led inside and, after a judicious interval in which the room and everything in it was subjected to the most serious scrutiny, coats and caps were placed aside and the real business of getting acquainted was begun.

With some the introduction consisted of a pat on the arm, others put their arms around each other and exchanged hugs; the older ones, especially the boys, walked around early looking at each other and suddenly broke out in whoops and a great show of fighting postures.

Business Taken Up

The formalities being completed, the serious business of the afternoon was taken up. Leah Saunders, five, was a splendid organizer. She planned games, led them and showed the guests how to draw and write. She met her Waterloo when she tried to persuade Judith Lee Norris, the same age to play school. Said Judith, "I would rather play lady, I have to go to school anyway in September."

So she played lady, and with Beverly Ann Reid to help, proceeded to take care of the tiny ones, much to their disgust. Alice Ann Leist (who was half past four but would be five in September) was about the busiest person present. She kept an eye out for Albert, her brother, who is just three, and a trifle bashful. Connie and Tommy Mettler, twins, five years old, were interested in everything and played and visited with all the children. Their real interest was in tap dancing and each had tap shoes ready for their lesson at 3 o'clock. The guests gathered around and watched carefully as Connie demonstrated her recently learned steps, but Tommy could not be bothered. He showed them how to play baseball. Tiny Rosemary Leist, 13 months, and Marilyn Richards, practically two, stood side by side against the wall, looked each other over, and gravely exchanged spoons.

The really extensive equipment of the nursery included two strings of spoons, one ball, some copy paper, pencils, one pair of blunt-pointed scissors, one catalogue and an old fashion magazine.

Master Ralph Burns of Ashville came with his mother who was sure he would not stay. He practically ignored her after five minutes at the party. His chief interest lay in the wastepaper basket and the valves of the radiator.

Rolltop Scene of Action

During the course of the afternoon the recess under a rolltop desk became successively a store, a playhouse, a robber's cave, and from one to five of the guests were in it all the time.

Rosemary Ann Blagg of Lancaster, who was visiting her grandmother, at two, was an independent young miss who knew what she wanted and really got it. Shirley Gutzell was much intrigued with her new white shoes and blue socks, while Linda Joe Storts, 21 months, spent the most of the afternoon storing away treasures such as pieces of paper, a ball and a pencil in a paper bag and carrying it around. Billy Stout, at four, showed himself a real boy and played and romped the time away.

So went the party, getting acquainted and entertaining themselves, the only serious lack being enough laps for holding the smaller fry for if one was held the other three wanted up at the same time. Came four o'clock, old friends by now, a riot broke loose, each tried to run the fastest, to make the most noise, to jump the highest, to outdo each other in deeds of daring, when a tap on the door announced the closing of the cooking school and the mothers arrived to take possession of the many tired little tikes who had happily furnished their own amusement at their very own party.

MOVIE ON SETTLING OF WEST SHOWN IN ASSEMBLY

Thursday, March 17, the students were shown a picture on the West. "The Plough That Broke the Plains". The movie made up a very interesting program. It was based on the growth of the West from pioneer days to the present. The booming of wheat prices during the war and the depression which followed were vividly shown. The picture ended by the showing of the dust storms and the immigration of the people farther West as a result of this. The picture also explained the recent dust storms were directly caused by the cultivation of the plains through the destruction of the grass and brush which serve as protection.

PRAISE GIVEN TO JR. CLASS PLAY

"New Fires" by Charles Quinn-Burdette, produced through the permission of Row, Peterson, and Co. by the junior class of Circleville high school last Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, received plaudits on all sides.

Mr. Samuel R. Johnson, dramatics instructor, is to be especially commended for his direction of the play, his first production in Circleville.

Many compliments have been paid members of the cast on their performances. Eleanor McAbee and Eugene Dewey, leading characters, were excellent in portrayals of Anne and Stephen Santry. Pauline Crosby, as Olive Santry, their daughter and juvenile lead, interpreted her role in a most pleasing manner.

Bill Stebleton (Billy) and Alice Huffer (Phyllis) turned out peppy performances as the younger members of the Santry family. Frank Barnhill and Medreth Bach (Mr. and Mrs. Richard Santry, young married couple) have been praised for their natural portrayals.

Dr. Lynn Gray, in the person of Robert Owens, exhibited finesse unusual in an amateur.

Supporting roles were filled by Virginia Gussman, Mary Hays, Tom Downing, Robert Liston, Alice Brown, Elizabeth Hoffman, and Betty Bach, who added mixed humor and pathos in their respective characterizations.

Business manager Ruth Clark and her staff - Allen Ankrom, Bob Barnes, Tom Brown, Ed Byers, Mildred Grose, and Betty McGinnis - deserve a large part of the credit for the success of the play.

The properties staff, headed by Adabelle May, and the stage crew, Bob Kibler, manager, were responsible for the stage setting, an Ozark mountain farmhouse. There was much comment on the set-up, one particularly adaptable to the small stage of the auditorium.

Included in the properties staff were Martha Goeller, Frank Beck and Jane Huffer, the stage crew was Donald Jackson, Dave Glick, and Tom Carrel, assisted by Philip Moore and Jim Moffitt.

Prompters were Ruth Ann Bowsher, Evadelle Elliott, Helen Evans and Eleanor Smalley; ushers, Thomas Brown, Ed Byers, Doris Cupp, Regina Hudnell, Ruth Moats, Frances Mowery, Dollie Riffle, Dorothy Spangler, and Roberta Stambaugh.

The junior class wishes to thank the townspeople, the teachers, and the pupils for their patronage. Proceeds from the play go into the class fund for the junior-senior banquet.

FROSH WIN GAME OF CONSOLATION

Wednesday afternoon the freshmen won the consolation game by defeating the juniors 35-31. Eugene Dewey and Ben Davis left the game on personal fouls in the fourth quarter.

Neither team at any time had a safe lead, but the juniors were leading at the half by a score of 24-19.

Referees for the tournament were: Henry Davis, Hildaburn Martin, Harold Smith, Earl Garner, and James Callahan.

ENGINE SOUNDS LIKE GUN

A truck that had developed some kind of engine trouble gave many Circleville residents a thrill early Saturday.

Numerous backfires from the outfit sounded like a gun battle was being staged on the city's streets. Police said the truck came into Circleville from the east and departed north on Court street.

The "shooting" awakened dozens of persons who rushed to the windows of their homes to see the "excitement."

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Of Human Hearts," dramatic story of an itinerant preacher of Lincoln's day, is the new vehicle which brings Walter Huston to the screen for the first time since his success in "Dodsworth." The new picture, based on the story, "Benefits Forged," by Honore Morrow, and in which James Stewart, Beulah Bondi and many notable stage and character players appear, comes to the Cliftona Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The story deals with a circuit-riding preacher, his wife, and their son, who grows up to be a famous surgeon, forgets his family ties, and whose feet are finally turned on the right path by Abraham Lincoln. Much of the action occurs in a backwoods Ohio village. Clarence Brown, director of "Conquest" and "Ah Wilderness!" directed.

AT THE GRAND

It was in recognition of their rising wave of popularity that Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief, decided to star the Ritz Brothers in their own right in "Life Begins in College." Twentieth Century-Fox musical smash of fun, frenzy and excitement featuring Joan Davis, Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart and a notable cast, which opens Sunday at the Grand Theatre.

The Ritz Brothers, who came from Broadway to crown their way to stardom in the movie capital, were recently featured in "Sing Baby Sing," "On the Avenue," and "You Can't Have Everything."

The decision came to star them after thousands of letters had poured into the studio from all parts of the country indicative of the increasing popularity of the comedians.

Included in the supporting cast of "Life Begins in College," are Fred Stone, Nat Pendleton, Ed Thorgeren, Dick Baldwin, Joan Marsh, Dixie Dunbar, Jed Prouty, Maurice Cass, Marjorie Weaver, and J. C. Nugent.

ANOTHER AIDE OF DOLLFUSS TAKES HIS LIFE

Neustaedter-Stuermer Shoots Himself While Being Held In Protective Custody

VIENNA, March 19.—(UP)—Odo Neustaedter-Stuermer, minister of public welfare in the Engelbert Dollfuss government, committed suicide last night at his country home where he was under protective custody, it was disclosed today.

His suicide followed that of Maj. Emil Fey, who was minister of defense under Dollfuss when the "martyr chancellor" was killed in the Nazi putsch of 1934. Fey shot his wife, their son and himself Wednesday; Neustaedter-Stuermer shot himself, at his estate near Moeding.

It was understood that Baron Karl Karwinsky, who was minister of justice under Dollfuss, was arrested several days ago.

Both with Dollfuss

Baron Karwinsky and Maj. Fey were the only two ministers with Dollfuss in his chancellery when the Nazis seized the building and shot Dollfuss, who bled to death.

Neustaedter-Stuermer was outside the chancellery, commanding forces loyal to the government. He threatened to bombard the chancellery with artillery if the Nazis did not surrender, but Fey, in a dramatic appeal from a balcony with Nazis guarding him, induced him not to. From that time Neustaedter-Stuermer and Fey were bitter enemies.

As the suicides and arrests of Dollfuss men continued, hundreds of Nazis made pilgrimages to the tomb of Otto Planetta, who was executed for the murder of Dollfuss. Flowers, with ribbons inscribed "You Have Conquered After All," were placed on the grave. The nearby tomb of Hans Dommes, hanged afterwards as a Nazi plotter, was similarly decorated.

Nazis also paid honors to Adolf Hitler at the house where he lived in a Vienna workers class district before the war. A guard of honor was placed at the door and garlands of flowers and Hitler's photograph exhibited.

NO TIME FOR TRUTH

SCRUPULOUS attention to the defenders' play can frequently disclose to a wise declarer the nature of their plot against him. Sometimes his only chance to foil them is to deceive them about his holding by timely false-carding. This usually means playing a higher-than-necessary card to some trick, perhaps wasting one which at first glance looks like a potential trick taker.

West and North passed on this deal and after an opening bid of 1-Spade by East, South jumped to 4-Hearts.

West led the spade 9, which was covered by the 10 in dummy and East won with the Q. The diamond 9 was East's return, on which South played the 10 and West took the trick with the J. When West continued with the diamond A, the declarer, John Godfrey Saxe, prominent New York attorney, did some rapid calculating and decided that East was hoping for a third round ruff. To confuse West, Mr. Saxe casually dropped his diamond K on the A. The ruse was successful, for West then switched to the spade 8, as he felt sure East held three diamonds originally. It seemed inconceivable to him that South would have sacrificed a possible winner. He had not reckoned on the shrewdness of his opponent, whose quick thinking earned him a victory.

The spade A was ruffed, trumps drawn and the club K overtaken with the A. The spade K provided a spot for the losing diamond.

CAMPUS LEVELS SOCIAL STATUS

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Students working their way through college no longer need feel "inferior" to their classmates, believes Clarence E. Clewell, director of the University of Pennsylvania's student aid department, who said self-supporting collegians are "the peer of their fellow-students now."

"The self-supporting student may be a member of the best social circles and every precaution is taken in arranging placements to avoid permitting the employer to feel anything but respect for the student workers," Dr. Clewell said.

He said it was "out of date" now for students to perform irrelevant tasks under "extremely bad working conditions."

"It is our aim," he said, "to fit applicants into positions from which they have more to gain than the financial remuneration involved. Work of the right kind, especially if related to the field for which the student is training, may afford contacts and experience which may be a complement to his studies."

The University of Pennsylvania places approximately 2,000 students in various jobs each year, Dr. Clewell said. Despite this, the university discourages elaborate plans of student self-support.

"Work that takes more than 20 hours a week outside the classroom is likely to curtail seriously the time a student needs for study and necessary recreation and rest periods," Dr. Clewell said.

He noted "a definite trend" toward endowing scholarships that provide for the student's expenses at college as well as tuition.

STYLE WHIMISIES

For wear with separate boleros and skirts are frilled blouses in pastel rayon with stand-up frill around the neck which extends down the front to the point where the bolero separates at front. Blouses in bright stripes or florals are also worn with boleros. Some have scarf sashes to tie about the waist.

Persian lamb again will be the fur choice for next year's winter coats.

For daytime and evening wear, boleros of suede, silk lined, in dusty pink and light blue are being shown. And for practical wear with slacks there is the short-sleeved bolero of sharkskin.

Linen suits again are to be popular this summer, with new higher buttonings and wide, stubby lapels.

Captive in Asylum?

A FORMER Pittsburgh hotel manager and a Cleveland nurse are on trial in Pittsburgh, charged with robbery, administering drugs and assault and battery in connection with the accusation of Mrs. Lucille Pearce, above, well-to-do Canonsburg, Pa., woman, that the two kept her captive in a Cleveland insane asylum. Mrs. Pearce charged the two, her husband, Maxwell Pearce, and Margaret Gordon, the nurse, ruined her health with drugs and forced her to empty her safety deposit box for them.

ENVOY OF NEGUS LOST MAN NOW

PARIS (UP)—Makonnen Habbe Wolde is in a worse position than the man without a country. He is the ambassador of a non-existent country without a passport.

When the King of Kings sat on confines of his capital, Makonnen Habbe Wolde was the minister of commerce. When Premier Benito Mussolini decided to annex Ethiopia and the Negus thought England would be much safer than the confines of his capital, Makonnen Habbe Wolde became His Excellency, Ambassador of Ethiopia to France. And so he has remained despite the King of Italy annexing the title of Emperor of Ethiopia.

But the portfolio of His Excellency brings no income, the fortune of an unfortunate King of Kings long ago having been depleted. So Wolde has been forced to find other means to replace a now non-existent diplomatic salary. And it was in such an attempt that the passport for the non-existent country disappeared.

In a Montmartre cafe, His Excellency was playing cards with friends, undoubtedly dealing on the precept that one can gain as well as lose. Winnings were a little above losses at about 2 A. M. when an unknown person approached stating he was an inspector from the Surete Nationale.

He asked Wolde to accompany him. Wolde protested and flashed his diplomatic passport but with no success, the newcomer insisted. And no sooner had the two men turned the corner, so Wolde told the police, than the inspector attacked him, took his diplomatic passport and disappeared.

Wolde had trouble then establishing his own identity.

13 AWAIT DEATH IN STATE PRISON ELECTRIC CHAIR

COLUMBUS, March 19—(UP)—Officials at the state penitentiary said today that when Stephen Figuli and Carl Boettcher, Cleveland, condemned slayers of a Columbus detective enter the prison the record number of 13 persons awaiting electrocution will be established.

Eleven prisoners, including Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, Cincinnati, now face the death penalty. Mrs. Hahn is in separate quarters and 11 men occupy cells in death row.

Mrs. Hahn, if her appeals fail, will be the first woman to die in the electric chair in Ohio. The supreme court hears her appeal March 25. Figuli and Boettcher have motions for new trials pending. If they are overruled, they probably will enter the prison next week. Boettcher, paralyzed from the waist down from a bullet wound in the spine, will be the first man in his condition ever to die in the chair in this state.

Execution date for Everett Jones, 33, convicted slayer of a Jeffersonville pool room proprietor, has been set for March 25, but his attorneys have applied for a hearing before the parole board. Jones' accomplice, Walter Barnes, 19, a lifer, made a signed statement recently that he fired the fatal shot.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU
BY BOB BURNS

It's always been pretty generally conceded that actors and musicians don't have much practical knowledge of other things, but I have a friend who's an orchestra leader.

Durin' the recent storm, his backyard was washed full of gullies and he got a crew of men back there to shovel it in shape again. He said he noticed the work was movin' pretty slow and he found that one of the fellas was whistlin' "Thanks For The Memory" and all the others were shovelin' in time with the music.

Then the orchestra leader opened his windows wide, turned his phonograph up loud and put on a record "Whistle While You Work" and he says ever since then the dirt's jest been flyin'.

FEAR OF WARFARE IN EUROPE FADES

deprived of their rights if they had lived abroad for more than five years, had severed their ties with the home land, or had refused to return to Poland despite a summons from Polish consulates.

Wives and children of such citizens also might be deprived of citizenship.

It was indicative of Polish confidence that Lithuania would accept the ultimatum expiring tonight that Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, inspector general of the army and strong man of the country, returned to Warsaw last night from the Vilna area, and that all important army generals were now here.

Before he left Vilna, Marshal Smigly-Rydz inspected troops and equipment along the frontier, including the motorized units which military experts believe in the next war in Europe will send a high speed army across the frontiers for a quick seizure of strategically important positions.

Acceptance came in the note which, for purposes of official form, was signed both by the Polish and Lithuanian ministers at Warsaw.

The note was as follows: "By order of my government I have the honor to state that the Lithuanian government has decided to establish normal diplomatic relations between Lithuania and Poland and for that purpose establishes a Lithuanian legation at Warsaw. The Lithuanian minister duly credited in Warsaw will present his credentials before March 31."

"The Lithuanian government guarantees on its part to the Polish minister at Kaunas conditions which will permit normal exercise of his functions and in connection with those functions guarantee establishment after March 31 of direct means of communication — by land, water, air and by postal, telegraphic and telephonic means — between that legation and the Polish government."

PROCESSING TAX MOVE FLAYED BY SENATE LEADER

WASHINGTON, March 19—(UP)—Chairman Pat Harrison, D., Miss., of the senate finance committee, today criticized efforts of senate farm leaders to attach a "rider" to the pending tax bill to raise $212,000,000 for farm benefit payments.

"I had hoped," he said, "that if the processing tax was going to be considered that it would be introduced in the house. I am afraid that it will delay consideration of this bill because of divergent views on the question."

He referred to the drive begun by Sen. James P. Pope, D., Ida., to write into the tax bill a schedule of tariff equalization fees on six basic agricultural commodities for annual "parity" payments to farmers. The schedule would affect cotton, synthetic fibers, rice, wheat, tobacco and field corn.

The fees would be pseudo-processing taxes. They would be imposed on the finished product instead of on the commodity that goes into the processing, as was the case under the old A. A. A.

Harrison, in opposing Pope's plan, emphasized the need of expeditious consideration of the bill. He summoned the committee into session an hour early and announced that he hoped to conclude public testimony.

BRITAIN BUILDS TIMBER STORES

LONDON (UP)—For reasons of "national defense," Great Britain is trying to step up the production of home-grown timber. Sir Roy Robinson, chairman of the Forestry Commission, invited owners of timber lands to a private conference with the commission to discuss methods of pushing upward the present output of around 47,000,000 cubic feet per annum.

The World War showed painfully that imports of foreign timber take up tonnage which is desperately needed for food supplies. In addition the war resulted in cutting down hurriedly some 500,000 acres of Britain's best timber. Main objectives of the Forestry Commission, established in 1920, are to expand Britain's timber lands until there is a "war reserve" of standing timber equal to three years' consumption and to create an annual output of between 100,000,000 and 125,000,000 cubic feet, compared with the present 47,000,000 cubic feet.

To this end the commission plans to increase its own plantings from the present 30,000 acres per annum to around 40,000 acres, while continuing its instructions and exhortations to private owners to plant more trees and to take care of those already growing. No headway has been made in displacing foreign-grown timber. It is estimated that in 1937 the total imports of foreign timber constituted about 94 percent of the country's lumber consumption.

LEVINE DENIES EVIDENCE FOUND IN BOY'S KIDNAPING

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 19—(UP)—G-men intensified the search today for 12-year-old Peter Levine, kidnaped Feb. 24 for $30,000 ransom.

The boy's father, Murray Levine, said he did not "put much stock" in reports that a major clue was discovered late yesterday. Asked if he had been informed of any new evidence, he said:

"No. I know I would be if there was anything to it."

The reports circulated after police and G-men were seen entering police headquarters with a large package whose contents they refused to reveal. Some believed it contained a toy typewriter on which several ransom notes were believed to have been written.

Insanity is much more prevalent in U. S. Cities than in rural sections of the country, statistics indicate.

Offers His Eye

EVER since Mrs. William Laverty of North Wales, Pa., announced she would sacrifice one of her own eyes in an attempt to restore vision to her son she has received offers of eye donors throughout the United States. But, Mrs. Laverty says, most of them demand compensation, which she cannot pay. One of those who does not demand compensation and who is being considered is Edward Detrick, of Detroit. Detrick is 45, unemployed and a bachelor. He wrote his offer to Gov. George Earle of Pennsylvania.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

The following questions are those which have actually been asked Mr. Ries in the last week, either by mail, by telephone, or personally at meetings. You too can have your questions answered by writing to this newspaper or direct to Mr. Ries, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me why my African violet does not bloom? I have had it a long time.

ANSWER: The African violet, although one of the most satisfactory house plants, if properly grown, is also one of the most tantalizing. If you put it in an east or north window and water it regularly, I would suggest a little each day; never allow the soil to become muddy; and fertilize it occasionally, according to the instructions in our house plant bulletin, it should bloom. You may obtain this bulletin from your local county agricultural agent.

QUESTION: I have a Persian lilac which, although it was full of flowers when I bought it, has not flowered since. Would you advise transplanting it?

ANSWER: Without seeing your lilac, it is difficult to say why it has not bloomed. Some of the difficulties might be that the lilac should be grown in full sunlight, that it prefers an alkaline soil, and that it should be fertilized more or less regularly. For this, I would recommend a small handful of a complete commercial fertilizer, with an analysis of 4-12-4, scattered over a couple square yards around the plant. If, after all these things, it does not bloom, it would be difficult to say what is the matter with it.

QUESTION: I am interested in planting some English ivy in my front yard underneath some trees. Is any special preparation of the soil necessary?

ANSWER: Any plants respond to thorough preparation of the soil, which includes the incorporation of some organic matter such as peat moss or rotted leaves if the soil is clay or sandy. In addition to this, I would apply a 4-12-4 commercial fertilizer at the rate of four pounds per 100 square feet. Since you are planting underneath the tree where it is going to be rather dry during the summer, you will find that heavy watering once a week during dry spells will be
